Man killed at record store

Herbert Alexander Dawkins, 54, of 715 Mobile Home Park is being held in the county jail with no bond after police say he shot and killed Ronald Bernard Tarver, 30, on Saturday night. Tarver was shot three times at the Ready Deal Record Shop on S.W. 6th Street, Belle Glade after the two men got into an argument.

Fire leaves mother and her two children homeless

Police are saying a fire that has left a mother and her two children homeless may have been deliberately set. The fire occurred last Sunday, June 29 at the residence of Yakisha Warren, 24, of 2685 Glades Drive, in the Sugar Cane Villas complex. No one was home at the time of the fire, which completely destroyed the two bedroom apartment. Pahokee Fire Lt. Andre Perez said the fire is considered suspicious because it started in two different places at once. Mrs. Warren and her children, Kiara Young, 6, and Corey Young, 4, were visiting relatives in Belle Glade when the 12:30 a.m. fire occurred. An investigation is ongoing by the state fire marshal's office. The West County Red Cross is providing the family with food and clothing.

WHAT A HOT SHOT...Modesto Pineda is shown receiving his shot from Natalie Marcell, RN for the School Health Program at Lake Shore Middle School. All seventh graders must receive these shots before the new school year. The program will return to Lake Shore Middle on July 28 and 29 from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m. They will be at Pahokee Junior/Senior High on July 8 also from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m.

THE LONG TREK...Youth from the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints in Belle Glade participated in a reenactment of the "Pioneer Trek" taken by their leader and president of the church, Brigham Young in 1847. Grand opening held for Glades Unity Plaza

By Brenda Bunting Editor

Extinguishing the heat and humidity, over 250 people attended the grand opening of Glades Unity Plaza on Monday, June 30.

Heralded as "a dream that is becoming a reality," the plaza will house many community projects all under the umbrella of the Glades Community Development Corporation.

GCDC Executive Director Austrie Moore-Williams welcomed guests as they fanned themselves under a tent in the front yard of the center. The building will house several entities spearheaded by GCDC, including EDGE (Enterprise Development for Glades Entrepreneurs), the Glades Guild, a project started by crafters in the community who desire to sell their goods locally.

GCDC also provided grants for Neighborhood Buddies, a Belle Glade project operated by Lester Finney; a $127,000 grant for the local health department to purchase a Med-Mobile; funding to start two HIPPY (Home Instruction Pre-school Program for Youngsters) in Belle Glade and Pahokee; a grant for Concerned Youth For Community Improvement in Pahokee; the St. Philips Core Group in Belle Glade; and a Youth Counseling group. GCDC receives grants to develop programs in the Glades through several sources, including the county, the MacArthur Foundation and the Mott Foundation.

"It's all about bringing the community together to be responsible for improvements in the area," said Mrs. Williams. "We try to work with the community to see what they want and then look for the resources to get the job done."

Youth from local Mormon Church participate in "Pioneer Trek"

Pulling hand carts across the Du Puis Reserve on State Road 76, four Belle Glade youth participated in the "Pioneer Trek".

The trek was a reenactment of the journey taken by members of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints over 150 years ago and their religious leader, Brigham Young.

Nephtal Vargas, Steve Snead, Denarius Bailey and Dinorris Hodges participated this past Friday and Saturday with about 70 other young members of the Mormon Church in re-enacting the 1,300 mile trek. Also participating from the area was Amanda Dukes of Clewiston, who attends the chapel in Belle Glade.

In near 90 degree heat, the young people went on a two day hike through the woods at the Du Puis Reserve near Indiantown. At several points on their hike, they encountered incidents reminiscent of some of the experiences of their pioneer church, including Indian attacks, kidnapping one of their women by Indians, river crossings on makeshift bridges, and other historic events. The hand carts they constructed were very similar to the ones the early pioneers pulled across the plains and over the Rocky Mountains, in which they had placed their tents and sleeping bags for their Friday night camp out.

Amanda Dukes later said she was grateful to be able to experience some of the re-enacted hardships the early pioneers went through. "It helps me appreciate my membership in the church, even more than before."

Stambaugh named "Lion of the Year" by Belle Glade Lions Club

Goggans while passing the current presidential status from Lion Curtis Stambaugh to Lion Hattie Bennett. Also installed were Sherida Woodham (1st VP), Alfredo Fernandez (2nd VP), Micah Corbin (3rd VP), Becky White (Sec.), Phil Dulany (Treas.), Joey Miller (Lion Tamer), and Steve French (Tail Twister). Lions Charles Echols, Vic Guzman, Ed Lively, and Emil Wolf were also installed as directors.

LAST MINUTE TOUCHUPS...Pam Nolan, Economic Development Specialist with the county and Bill Wilkins, Assistant County Administrator, put a few finishing touches on the "store fronts" for the Glades Guild just before the open house and ribbon cutting ceremonies at the old Glades Central High School library.

Measuring Winds

By Mike Lyons
It is the most thoroughly examined hurricane in United States history. More researchers have conducted more studies on Hurricane Andrew than any other storm.

Yet, despite nearly five years of investigation, scientists are still unable to answer one very basic question about Andrew: What was the storm's peak winds?

Andrew came onshore in the middle of the hurricane research community. No place on earth has more experts in tropical meteorology than South Florida. Yet, the storm was so powerful just about every reliable anemometer was destroyed.

One automated station on Poye Rocks, located in Biscayne Bay, recorded a five second peak gust of 169 mph. Winds reached 164 mph at the National Hurricane Center and a peak gust of 163 mph was recorded at the Turkey Point Power Plant.

Some amateur meteorologists reported their home anemometers recorded wind gusts of 177 mph. And a study by the Hurricane Research Laboratory conducted several days after Andrew hit, suggested wind gusts of 205 mph.

Chances are we may never know the exact wind speed of Hurricane Andrew. We do know that it was not the strongest storm in history.

That dubious honor belongs to typhoon Tip, a huge hurricane that developed in the Northwest Pacific Ocean in October of 1979. Tip had a central pressure of 870 mb (the lowest ever recorded) and estimated sustained winds of 190 mph.

Mike Lyons

Typhoon Nancy, which formed in the same area of the Pacific in 1961, reportedly had sustained winds of 213 mph. But, hurricane researchers now believe the maximum sustained winds of typhoons during that period were too high.

In our part of the world, both Hurricane Camille, the storm that hit Mississippi in 1969, and Hurricane Allen, which struck Texas in 1980, had estimated winds of 190 mph.

The key word in all of these reports is "estimated." Since these mighty storms have a nasty habit of destroying all the anemometers, we can only estimate the winds of a hurricane. Their actual wind speed may never be known.

So, theoretically, how high could that estimate go? Is 200 mph the top of the scale or could a hurricane produce more powerful gusts of wind?

How about a 500 mph hurricane? Massachusetts Institute of Technology (MIT) Professor Kerry Emmanuel says it is possible for a storm to produce winds of 5400 mph.

Emmanuel calls his super storm a hypercane. This hypercane could only be created, Emmanuel says, if a series of very unusual events took place.

First, a giant meteor would have to land in the tropical Atlantic. Besides making huge waves, the meteor would heat large regions of the ocean to over 120 degrees. Since hurricanes become stronger as the ocean temperature rises, Emmanuel's theoretical calculations predict the hypercane's winds would reach 500 mph.

While the winds of this hypercane would be incredible, the storm itself would be relatively small. Emmanuel's computer models suggest the hypercane would be about 15 miles across. A typical major hurricane can cover hundreds of square miles.

Thankfully, Emmanuel's hypercane is not likely to form anytime soon. In fact, major hurricanes are rare events. We average one category three (110 mph) hurricane each season.

Hopefully, this summer will be a quiet one in the tropics. That way researchers can spend their time investigating Hurricane Andrew, not some new storm attempting to make history.

Little Master King is an inspiration to us all

Spina bifida is a spinal defect that is present at birth. The spine encloses and protects the spinal cord. In spina bifida, the spinal cord does not form properly and the vertebrae and skin cannot form around it.

There are several types of spina bifida, and they vary in severity. The most familiar and serious type is open spina bifida. This form of spina bifida can be life-threatening during infancy and causes mild to severe disabilities in all who survive. It occurs in one of every 2,000 live births. In addition to spinal defects, open spina bifida is characterized by abnormalities of the brain and of the muscles and skin that lie over the spine. At birth, the baby has an opening in the skin over the middle or lower part of the back.

Open spina bifida results from an error in the development of the embryo that occurs about a month before a woman becomes pregnant. This error may have various causes, including the use of alcohol or certain medications by the pregnant woman or exposure to extreme heat. Genetic factors appear to be important.

Infants with open spina bifida require various types of surgery, including surgery immediately after birth to close the open spine. Without treatment, most infants will die within a few years or become severely disabled.

Disabilities common in people born with open spina bifida include paralysis or weakness of the legs and lack of bowel or bladder control. Adults may experience impaired sexual function. Most infants also have hydrocephalus, an enlargement of the head due to blockage of fluid flow from the brain. These infants require surgery to prevent brain damage.

Blood tests and ultrasound examinations during pregnancy usually can detect open spina bifida in a fetus. Most people born with open spina bifida can become independent adults, despite permanent disability, if given good parenting, medical treatment, social opportunity and education.

Folic acid, a vitamin also known as folate or folacin, may prevent open spina bifida. Ideally, a woman should take small amounts of this vitamin in the month or two before she becomes pregnant and in the first three months of pregnancy.

Levi Thomas Crosby, three year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Crosby of Belle Glade and Mr. and Mrs. Kit Clemons of Okeechobee, was born with open spina bifida. The doctors said he would never walk. Last June, he proved them wrong and took his first step.

This June 21, in Okeechobee, he took the title of Little Master King in the Mr. and Miss Firecracker pageant.

He also won Most Photogenic, Best Fashion and 1st Place Handsome.

The pageant was sponsored by the Okeechobee Fire Department, and Levi himself was sponsored by Jim Hooks Welding here in Belle Glade.

He will appear in the July 4 parade in Okeechobee.

Grandmother Debbie Cumpston of Belle Glade says the entire family has learned so much from Levi.

Mrs. Cumpston says that with the assistance of the Elks Club in Pahokee the family was put in contact with the Shriner's, noted for their assistance with disabled children. With their help, Levi has been given all he needs to be one of the happiest, healthiest little boys in town.

Mrs. Cumpston shares grandparenting honor with her husband Alan Cumpston and Joanne and Tommy Culberson of Pahokee.

HATS OFF...Levi Thomas Crosby, age 3, of Belle Glade and Okeechobee won the title of Little Master King in the Mr. and Miss Firecracker pageant June 21 in Okeechobee.

Racial discrimination

I think that's racial discrimination."

Letters to the editor

Booze abounds

Dear editor:

An ample supply of alcoholic beverages is readily available on virtually every major street corner throughout the Glades. This would seem to eliminate the need for a new "watering hole" for the casual consumer and alcoholic alike. Unless the motive of a store owner is driven solely by financial gain.

Why must our under appreciated city commissioners in this quaint community be the "watch dogs" over every green company to enter town? Where does the individual stand as to quality of life and future for the common inhabitants?

If profit is your sole motive, consider vegetables. As a producer of vegetables you must have some knowledge about the retail end where your products rest. The fact is that the leader of profits from sales in high volume food markets is "veggies," which can return up to 30 percent on investment compared to under 10 percent on most other purchases.

Pahokee is on the verge of being discovered in terms of tourism. This phenomenon is being driven by the Palm Beach County Tourism Alliance and the county commissioners through Eco/Farm Tours.

This little known town will become known for something to the visitors. Would you ponder the notion of becoming part of the forward thrust and contribute to the area instead of simply building another (in) convenience store?

The "Florida Trail," which begins at the state line in the panhandle and extends (future) to Key West is neatly positioned as part of the Hoover Dike. This 110 mile segment is the longest continuum of the trail. It is also conveniently positioned within 150 miles of 35 million visitors per season. Even the home of the mouse can't tout those numbers, with only 20 million within the same range.

I say something good is about to happen...become part of it.

City manager responds to Jessica Dear Jessica:

I'm sorry you didn't receive the response you were looking for regarding the flags in Pahokee. We do take the American Flag seriously and it's gratifying that some of our youth do also.

Memorial Day was a problem because of the storms and some equipment malfunctions we experienced. We are having all of the holders checked and replaced where necessary. Hopefully, we won't have that problem again although we can't control the storms.

The flags on the dike are flown at all times except severe weather, such as hurricanes, and are properly lighted at night. We do however, have some problems with the lighting as some insensitive people enjoy shooting out the lights. Florida Power and Light has replaced it as soon as they could.

We fly the flags at half mast whenever recommended by the State or Federal Government. They are also flown at half mast whenever a city employee, past or present, passes away or in respect to other dignitaries who have been important to the city.

We appreciate your concern and interest in our flag. Should you at any time feel something is inappropriate, please feel free to call me.

Sincerely,

Kenneth N. Schenck

Test Palm Tran

Dear editor:

Traveling in Europe, the city bus is a vital lifeline for the majority of citizens. Space on the highways and for parking is precious. Gasoline is terribly expensive and many consider the private ownership of a motor vehicle a nuisance.

Palm Beach County is sprawling and open, giving the illusion of vehicular anonymity. However, during peak traffic hours the allure of privacy on the road evolves into a nerve racking experience.

I learned recently that Palm Tran has been rated somewhere near the bottom, compared to other county bus lines in Florida. This is due to a low rider participation.

Why are we not using the bus? To answer this question, I took the bus from Pahokee to Belle Glade, a short 10 miles and back for a couple of weeks. The first impression that still stands out in my mind is the wait. That is, learning the schedule of the bus and estimating its time of arrival to eliminate any unnecessary sun-bathing. With some experience, I have reduced

Taiwan, China, and politics in the World Trade Organization: Why should you care?

By Bruce Benson

The James Madison Institute

To gain acceptance as a member of the World Trade Organization (WTO), Taiwan (the Republic of China on Taiwan) is rapidly resolving its differences with the United States and other WTO members. Taiwan's entry, however, may be blocked by China (the People's Republic of China (PRC), a nation that is not even a member of the organization. So what? Floridians have enough to worry about here at home without being concerned over the politics of the WTO, whatever that is! Right? Wrong!

Taiwan, with its $21 million people, was the sixth largest market in the world for U.S. exports in 1995. Of the $19.3 billion that the Taiwanese spent on U.S. goods over $110 million came to Florida. A lot of Florida wages and a lot of dollars spent in Florida grocery stores and malls came into the state through Taiwan.

And if (or when) Taiwan meets the conditions for entry into the WTO, American exports to that island should increase dramatically. After all, because of various trade barriers preventing the importation of U.S. goods, America's 1995 trade deficit with Taiwan was $9.7 billion. This deficit has shrunk from a high of $16 billion, however, with a series of trade barriers reductions and increased demand for American goods in the rapidly expanding Taiwanese consumer market.

To gain entry into the WTO, Taiwan's remaining trade barriers must be reduced; the trade deficit will then wither with a resulting increased flow of American-made goods. Floridians should be eager for Taiwan's entry into the WTO - the expanded Taiwanese spending of millions of dollars in our state might solve some of our local problems. But there is another reason as well. The WTO was the product of the latest round of negotiations over the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade (GATT). Membership in the WTO is supposed to be based on economic criteria, not politics.

Members must apply the same tariff and trade regulations to goods and services from all member countries and cannot discriminate against imported goods in favor of domestic industries. Furthermore, existing members already agreed to numerous reductions in trade barriers relative to the pre-WTO period.

In addition to accepting the WTO agreement, new entrants must negotiate directly with each member. So, despite already completing multilateral negotiations with 10 WTO members and moving rapidly toward agreements with several more, Taiwan will still have to satisfy American concerns before it can be accepted. However, there may be an even bigger hurdle for Taiwan's entry into the WTO - China's "bully politics."

Many Americans opposed GATT, expecting that it involved political manipulations that would result in the loss of jobs to foreign countries with cheaper labor costs. Taiwan presents an interesting test case. With a per capita income of $12,439 in 1995, it is no longer one of the "cheap labor" threats to U.S. jobs.

Instead, Taiwan is an increasingly lucrative market for U.S. products, a market that will open up even more with WTO status. But China has also applied for membership in the WTO, and in China, politics are paramount. The Communist government does not want Taiwan to be admitted into the WTO before China, and it is applying great pressure for its demands to be met.

When bullies get their way, they have no reason to stop being bullies. In fact, China is far from meeting WTO requirements, and it is dragging its feet on many economic issues as it tries to bully its way in while maintaining many high trade barriers. If the WTO delays Taiwan's entry to satisfy China, why should China back down on its demands for special economic treatment as well?

Many WTO member countries are anxious to maintain good relations with China, recognizing its population of 1.2 billion as a tremendous potential market. But that potential cannot be realized if China does not eliminate its protectionist policies as Taiwan is doing. In fact, while China can claim the status of America's "sixth-largest trading partner," the flow of goods is predominantly one way - into the U.S. Of the over $48 billion total trade, less than $12 billion was spent by China on American goods.

It is time for the politicians who negotiated GATT and who run the WTO to show that the results really can be good for Americans.

It is time for the politicians who negotiated GATT and who run the WTO to show that the results really can be good for Americans, and the U.S. government should take the lead. Both Taiwan and China should be invited into the WTO if they agree to the same trade policies that the other developed economies have accepted. If, however, China is granted entry without fully meeting the economic criteria, American jobs will be lost to protected Chinese industries. And if Taiwan's trade barriers remain in place because its entry is delayed to satisfy China's political concerns, American jobs will also be lost.

The World Trade Organization must demonstrate to the American people through this test case with Taiwan that the WTO is about economics and not politics.

my waiting time to under 5 minutes. That's cutting it close.

The next most powerful impression about the bus ride is the four drivers I met. Robert, Linda, Frank and Jake. I don't usually remember names so easily. They tell me that as many as 11 drivers work this side of the county. These guys are the tops as far as being friendly and professional. I got the impression they each genuinely care about the Glades area of Palm Beach County.

The third impression which stands out in my mind is all the people I encountered during this short two weeks. There seems to be a powerful force working at the time of travel on the bus which induces friendliness and openness. In the case of the children, they were well mannered. There is certainly something about riding on a bus with total strangers that can bring the best out of all of us. This element creates a positive experience for everyone including the driver.

For longer trips, such as to the east coast, I suggest carrying a light wrap or wind breaker as the buses are thankfully, ice cold even during this hot month of June.

Old habits are hard to break and the dread of being stranded is but one of the personal hurdles we should each address. But, in any case, when you have the courage and the time, test the Palm Tran. See where it may take you. It's fun!

Two Everglades Research Center faculty receive USDA awards

Two faculty members from the University of Florida's Everglades Agricultural Research and Education Center in Belle Glade were honored recently in ceremonies in Washington, D.C.

Russell Nagata, associate professor and Joan Dusky, professor at the Belle Glade center were part of a team of UF/IFAS scientists honored for outstanding biotechnology research and development of the first lettuce cultivar with resistance to an environmentally compatible herbicide that eliminates the need for expensive mechanical weed removal. The two, along with four others from other faculties, were given the Honor Awards, which are the federal agency's highest recognition for outstanding contributions to agriculture and the consumer. The presentations were made June 11 by Secretary of Agriculture Dan Glickman.

The research accomplished by these six professors will revolutionize weed control in lettuce and other crops. They developed the nation's first lettuce variety that is completely resistant to a popular and effective herbicide, glyphosate. The new herbicide-resistant lettuce variety is expected to boost Florida lettuce production and literally save the state's struggling lettuce industry from going out of business.

Professor Joan Dusky

Assoc. Prof. Russell Nagata

The genetically engineered lettuce variety will allow growers to control weeds with an environmentally friendly herbicide - saving growers up to $750 per acre now being spent to mechanically remove weeds from fields.

The United States is the world's largest lettuce producer but weed control has been the most serious obstacle to production.

Until now, glyphosate could not be used to control weeds in this crop because the lettuce would be damaged or destroyed by the chemical.

Navy Petty Officer 3rd Class Joe Kyles, son of Diane Kyles of 140 N.W. 9th St., Belle Glade, who is currently on a six month deployment to the Mediterranean Sea aboard the aircraft carrier USS John F. Kennedy, recently completed a six day port visit to Marseilles, France.

While in port, Kyles and his shipmates had the opportunity to experience the French culture and also share the uniqueness of a U.S. aircraft carrier with the people of Marseilles. Highlights included tours of French castles and vineyards. In addition, crew members also took time out to paint a local soup kitchen.

Aircraft carriers like Kyles' ship are forward deployed around the world to maintain a U.S. presence and provide rapid response in times of crisis. Sailors and Marines like Kyles are often the first to arrive in situations ranging from humanitarian relief efforts to combat operations.

Hastings introduces legislation "condemning the Military Coup D'etat in Sierra Leone"

Congressman Alcee Hastings (D-Miramar), a member of the House International Relations Committee's Subcommittee on Africa, today successfully introduced legislation that condemns the leaders and members of the military armed forces ruling council (AFRC) for ousting the democratically elected government of the Republic of Sierra Leone.

The bill expresses concern over the recent events in Sierra Leone in the Wake of the military coup led by Major Johnny Raul Koroma and the AFRC on May 25, 1997. Since then, there has been fighting, killing and a disruption of relief supplies in that nation. "It is up to the U.S. to denounce the acts of Sierra Leone Military as an unacceptable rebuff to all those who seek freedom throughout the world. By safe guarding the rights of Sierra Leoneans, we are protecting the rights of citizens in the international community," said Congressman Hastings.

The resolution also encourages the people of Sierra Leone to work together to bring about a solution to this conflict; reaffirms the U.S. support of the democratically elected government of Sierra Leone; urges an immediate end to all violence; and encourages the members of the AFRC to negotiate a hand-over of power back to the democratically elected government of that country.

Congressman Hastings is very active on the subcommittee in promoting democracy in Africa. "If we as democratic leaders of the world do not speak out forcefully against the military overthrow of this elected government, we are sanctioning the blatant robbery of the freedom of this great nation," said Hastings. "I urge an immediate restoration of constitutional order in that African country to protect the investment of its people as well as the security of that great continent."

Petitioner shall mail a copy of the petition to the applicant at the address indicated above at the time of filing. Failure to file a petition within this time period shall constitute a waiver of any right such person may have to request an administrative determination (hearing) under Section 120.57, F.S.

The Petition shall contain the following information:

- The name, address and telephone number of each petitioner, the applicant's name and address, the Permit File Number and the county in which the project is proposed;

- A statement of which rules or statutes petitioner contends require reversal or modification of the Health Department's action or proposed action;
- A statement of the relief sought by petitioner, stating precisely the action petitioner wants the Health Department to take with respect to the Health Department's action or proposed action.

If a petition is filed, the administrative hearing process is designed to formulate agency action. Accordingly, the Health Department's final action may be different from the position taken by it in this notice. Persons whose substantial interests will be affected by any decision of the Health Department with regard to the application have the right to petition to become a party to the proceeding. The petition must conform to the requirements specified above and be filed (received) within fourteen (14) days of receipt of this intent, in this office, Division of Environmental Health & Engineering, at the above address of the Palm Beach County Health Department. Any subsequent intervention will only be at the approval of the presiding officer upon motion filed pursuant to Rule 28-5.207, F.A.C.
